

WHEN OKR WAY IS THE HIGHWAY

An Automotive industry organisation based out of China was looking for an OKR tool. They started shortlisting a few apps on the Atlassian marketplace and subsequently reached out to UpRaise, requesting a 10-minute walkthrough video. This video was to be showcased to the leadership group of the organisation, who would then decide on the solution to go ahead with.

FUELLING UP ON INSIGHTS

The partner organisation had a complex data centre version of Jira to manage its operations, and were using multiple apps from the marketplace to address other requirements. Jira was customised to a great extent too, and these pointed at a customizable solution that wouldn't be a run of the mill plug and play execution.

ACCELERATING WITH THE SOLUTION

UpRaise team gladly accepted the request and created a 10-minute walkthrough video of the app. In addition to the features requested to be showcased, team UpRaise also shared details about the immensely flexible configurations that UpRaise for Employee Success offers - since the ask was primarily for an OKR tool.

CROSSING THE FINISH LINE

The availability of various kinds of granular customisations through the app impressed the leaders of the partner organisation. Their executive team gave approval to procure the app, and work with UpRaise customer success team to customise it even further. The team has been working with the partner organisation almost on a weekly basis as they scale the OKR adoption in their entire organisation.

LEARNINGS ON THE JOB

Aiming for flexibility allows organisations to utilize a new component - in this case, OKR tools - more effectively. The detailed & granular configurations offered by UpRaise for Employee Success, enables teams to tune it according to their requirements and ensure that the solution fits perfectly to their needs.